

Eric Helmrich honored as Chuck Hall Star of Tomorrow

The Chuck Hall and Alberta E. Crowe Star of Tomorrow award winners are selected by USBC in recognition of their distinguished bowling performance, academic achievement, extracurricular activities, and community involvement. Each recipient receives a $1,500 scholarship, renewable up to three years.

During the USBC Convention in Orlando, Fla., Eric Helmrich of St. Leonard, Md., was honored as the Chuck Hall Star of Tomorrow. Helmrich is a USBC Junior Gold member who has competed in what is now known as the USBC Junior Gold Championships each year since 2002. He and his teammates won the 2004 Dyno-Thane Team Championships, another Junior Gold event. Helmrich followed in his coach's footsteps and earned certification as a USBC Level I coach. He also is an advanced placement scholar at Patuxent High School and plans to study engineering or computer technology at either the University of Maryland's Baltimore County or College Park campuses. "I'm honored and humbled to be selected for the Star of Tomorrow Award," he said. "Bowling has allowed me to feel comfortable in any place I've been. To bowl also has been a learning experience for me as a student and as a coach. Bowling has allowed me to keep friendships for the rest of my life."
