

There is something mystical about twins. We hear stories about how twins, even though they may be apart, can sense when the other person is in trouble or hurt. Or perhaps when one mentally "helps" the other achieve a goal.

We have also heard and read stories about their intense competition in school, on the job, in marriage . . . and on the bowling lanes?

Yes. Bowl America Burke is fortunate to have a set of twins named Matt and Joe Forseth. Matt was born Nov. 2, 1972, and Joe followed some six minutes later—and he has never been able to make up that head start that Matt has going for him.

Thus, it should follow that when Matt rolled his 300 game in April 1991, Joe would not be far behind. Sure enough, Joe got his 300 game in September 1991.

Not to say that there was a lot of good natured teasing going on between the twin brothers, but Joe's first words after the 12th strike were, "It is about time!"

Congratulations to Matt and Joe for achieving the one award every bowler covets.

— Dr. Gray Ransom

Forseth twins peak at Burke

Matt (left) and Joe Forseth—or Is it Joe and Matt?